I have a DBS (deep brain stimulator) implant manufactured by:

Vital Information For The Care of Individuals With Parkinson's Disease

Situations that may make my Parkinson's worse:

- 1) Not getting my Parkinson's medications at the correct time
- 2) A new illness, usually an infection (such as pneumonia, urinary tract infection)
- 3) Physical or emotional stress, lack of rest, prolonged immobility
- 4) Taking Sinemet (carbidopa/levodopa) with high protein meals (in some individuals only)
- 5) Taking incompatible medications*

- *Medications that should not be given to a person with Parkinson's disease (this is not a complete list): haloperidol (Haldol), chlorpromazine (Thorazine), thioridazine (Mellaril), thiothixene (Navane), fluphenazine (Prolixin), metoclopramide (Reglan), prochlorperazine (Compazine), promethazine (Phenergan).
- Selegiline (Eldepryl), selegiline HCL (Zelapar), safinamide (Xadago), and rasagiline (Azilect) are MAO-B inhibitors and may interact with several medications such as antidepressants, narcotic pain killers, and decongestants.
- If antipsychotic medication is necessary, clozapine (Clozaril) which requires regular laboratory monitoring, quetiapine (Seroquel), or pimavanserin (Nuplazid) are the preferred medications.

My Medication Schedule

It is very important I get my Parkinson medications promptly at the times specified. If this is not possible please request an order from my admitting physician authorizing me or my care partner to administer my own medication. The accurate timing of my medication improves my ability to function and participate in my own care. Interruption in my medication routine can make me more dependent on nurses and family members and delay my recovery.
